

Individual discussion, Ali Alladin – Week 7

What do I want to learn or understand better?

Next week will be the last sprint and the only thing that remains is to design the application (just like I wrote last week). We didn't start designing the application last week but we will most probably do it next week. Last week I took inspiration from other websites and applications and I will the coming week look into how what we are aiming for can be designed using available bootstrap components.

How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

Nothing new here either. During the week some fellow group members faced a problem when they were implementing their user story and asked me to take a look. We could locate the problem quite quickly and I am happy I could contribute to the solution.

What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

Our use of scrum hasn't changed from the previous weeks. I of course did participate in the meetings with both the stakeholder, supervisor and then the sprint planning just like all the weeks.

What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

This was a shorter week and the user stories this week almost only consisted of small fixes to the functionality we had already implemented. So, we decided to have a different approach and almost everyone worked individually on user stories rather than pairs. I added the color-coding functionality to courses and fixed the final things with the time report so that it can be generated for saved courses.
